

Instructions

1. Add rubbing alcohol to a cotton ball without saturating it.
2. Treat the region that has tape residue. Do not rub the cotton ball on the affected area, simply spot treat the area by applying the alcohol onto the tape residue. Alcohol eliminates the adhesive consistency.
3. Rub off the tape residue from the fabric with a dry finger. You'll be able to roll off the bits of adhesive until they are completely gone.

Our Fashion Tape is a clear, double-sided, body and apparel adhesive that helps hold clothes in place. Fashion tape is used for temporarily hemming pants and for keeping certain fabrics from moving on the body. To use fashion tape, you must peel the backing from one side, and then press the tape firmly to your skin or a fabric. Next, remove the backing from the other side of the tape, and apply and secure the fabric item. Fashion tape comes off easily; however, if you find residue when you remove the tape from your clothing, you can remove it.

The tape comes in many forms. The two most handy are the roll and the strips. They are both equally good but there are advantages to each. The pre-cut strips are great for keeping in your purse or evening bag. I love to tuck a few in a clutch when I go out. The roll is best for getting exactly the size you need without additional cutting.
